Report

As part of the Back to Inspire initiative, an Alumni–Student Interaction session titled "Current Opportunities in MNCs & Upskilling Techniques to Survive" was organized on 14-08-2025 for the II MBA III Semester students. The primary objective of this interaction was to provide students with practical insights into global career opportunities, emerging industry trends, and the essential skills required to thrive in today's competitive job market.

The distinguished alumni speaker shared valuable experiences about their professional journey in multinational corporations, highlighting the dynamic nature of corporate culture, global mobility, and cross-functional teamwork. Discussions included the importance of digital literacy, adaptability, continuous learning, and certifications in areas such as data analytics.

Students actively participated by asking questions related to interview preparation, industry expectations, career growth strategies, and balancing personal development with professional goals. The speaker emphasized the importance of networking, building strong communication skills.

Key Learnings

1. Understanding current recruitment trends and hiring practices in MNCs.
2. The significance of certifications and technical courses to enhance employability.
3. Importance of adaptability, problem-solving, and cross-cultural communication.
4. Role of internships, live projects, and case competitions in gaining practical exposure.
5. Strategies to build resilience and sustain career growth in a competitive environment.
6. Networking as a tool to unlock global career opportunities

Conclusion

The Alumni–Student Interaction provided students with a clearer vision of the opportunities available in multinational corporations and the importance of upskilling to remain industry-relevant. The session served as a motivational platform that encouraged students to focus on lifelong learning, adopt industry-relevant tools, and prepare proactively for global careers.
