The Department of Computer Science and Engineering (Artificial Intelligence) successfully organized a two-day workshop on "AI Engineering for Industry-Scale Innovation, Development and Deployment", benefiting second-year CSE(AI) students. The workshop introduced participants to AI engineering, cloud technologies, Flutter application development, and scalable software solutions through expert-led sessions and hands-on activities. Students gained practical experience in Dart programming, Flutter UI development, Firebase integration, and AI-enabled mobile application development. The program also covered state management, backend connectivity, debugging, performance optimization, and best practices for industry-scale application deployment. Overall, the workshop enhanced students' technical expertise and industry readiness by bridging the gap between academic learning and real-world AI engineering practices.
